Central University Website Policies

Politics

Central University College (CUC) has no political affiliations in Ghana or abroad. However the University will work with all those who have an interest in helping it achieve its goal of providing education, especially in raising Transformational Leaders.

Personal Data

The CUC website does not collect personal information about visitors to the website; visitors may however choose to volunteer their personal data by filling out electronic forms that are available on the website.

Disclosure to Third Parties

CUC does not give out personal information volunteered by visitors to the website to third parties. CUC however reserves the right to disclose information under special circumstances, including when there is the need to comply with the requirements of judicial proceedings or, in the sole discretion of the University, when such disclosure is deemed necessary to protect the interest of CUC

External Sites and blogs

The CUC website has links to other sites (websites and blogs) that are independent of the www.central.edu.gh domain. CUC does not take responsibility for the privacy practices or the contents that are found on these sites (websites and blogs).

The views carried by these independent sites (websites and blogs) are not necessarily representative of CUC’s views. It contains links to independent Blogs; these blogs represent the views and perspectives of their individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of CUC.
